

Mar 2010

XOBNI - pronounced zob ni is merely Inbox spelled backwards but it is powerful as a data handler for Outlook 2003 and 2007. Free copy available at www.xobni.com There is also a paid version that does even more than the freebie. Impressed, and scared, some folks at the meeting today. Impressed them with all that it is capable of. Scared them with all that it is capable of.

Go to <https://www.xobni.com/learnmore/> and watch the 5 minute video on Xobni. If you use Outlook you will want this on your computer.

We also went over NexusRadio and CardMaster, both of which were going to be the center of attention last month, before the tsunami scare. Info on both is in the Feb entry on the WINSIG page.

Mike's List - at <http://mikeslist.com/> is put together by Mike Elgan. His ezine usually has fun and unusual technology products and web sites. Free subscription at the site.

One of the finds on Mike's List was this one

<http://www.therawfeed.com/2010/03/found-video-virtual-choir-has-all.html>

185 people, in 12 countries, singing LUX AURUMQUE a cappella. Each singer on a webcam feed, all in unison and complete harmony. Quite an achievement.

Virtual Box - And, I finally got to show off the Windows XP in Windows Vista today. I explained how I had to add a partition to my hard drive, install XP and have the best of both operating systems (OS) on one computer at the same time. In days past you had to completely reboot if you wanted to change from one OS to another. But, with Sun Microsystems free Virtual Box, you boot into the master OS and then open the second one. Then you can switch from one to the other independently. I haven't figured out how to drag and drop between the two, or even if I can, but I'm looking at it.

Plus, we fielded a number of questions from the floor and proceeded in answering them all.

We also learned that Mary Hedge has a Super Doctor for a son. Dr. Thomas L. Hedge, MD in Northridge, CA is on the LA Magazine's list of super doctors for Southern California.

Congrats to Mom and Son.